Real Estate Interior | C

A professional interior photo showing the interior decor, the geometry of the space and the ambient lighting will attract attention on social media or on your website and will impress your target audience.

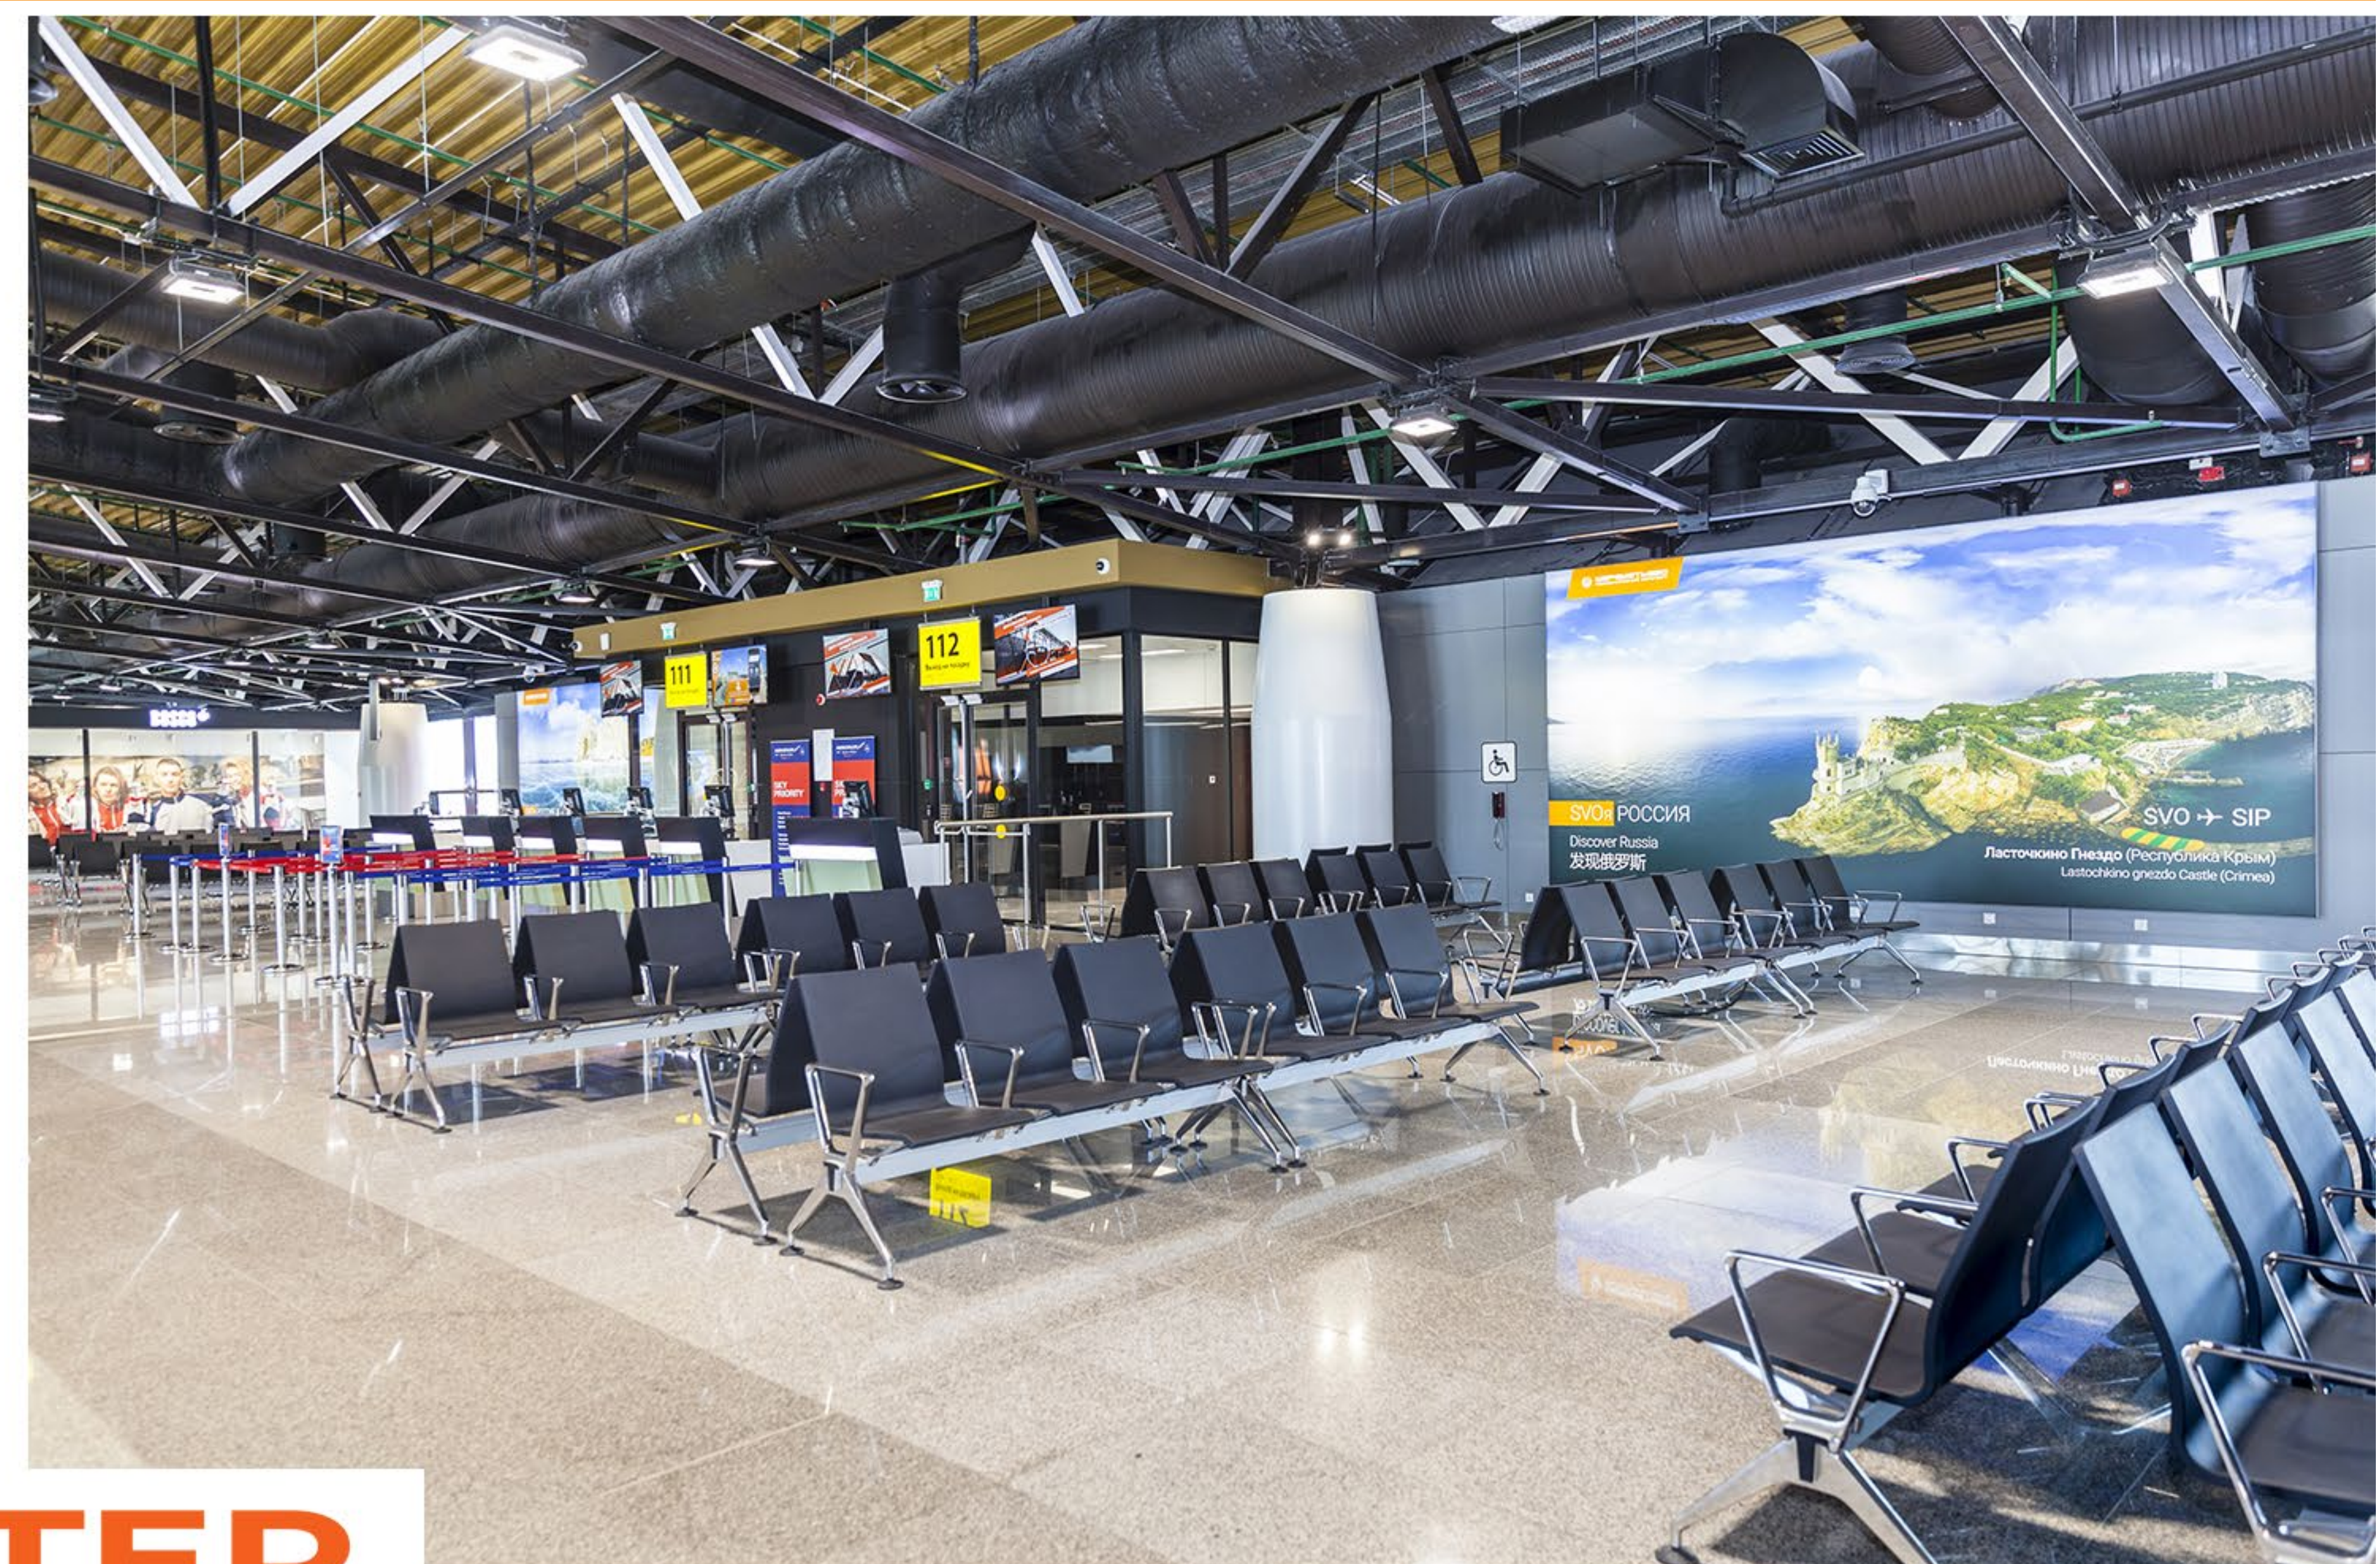

Interior photos are currently in demand during the sale and rental of real estate, during the presentation / portfolio creation of interior architectural works, and in the contents of many businesses' social media and print catalogs.

The most important things to be done before the indoor shooting are the cleaning and layout of the area, the removal of personal belongings and photos.

Real Estate Exterior

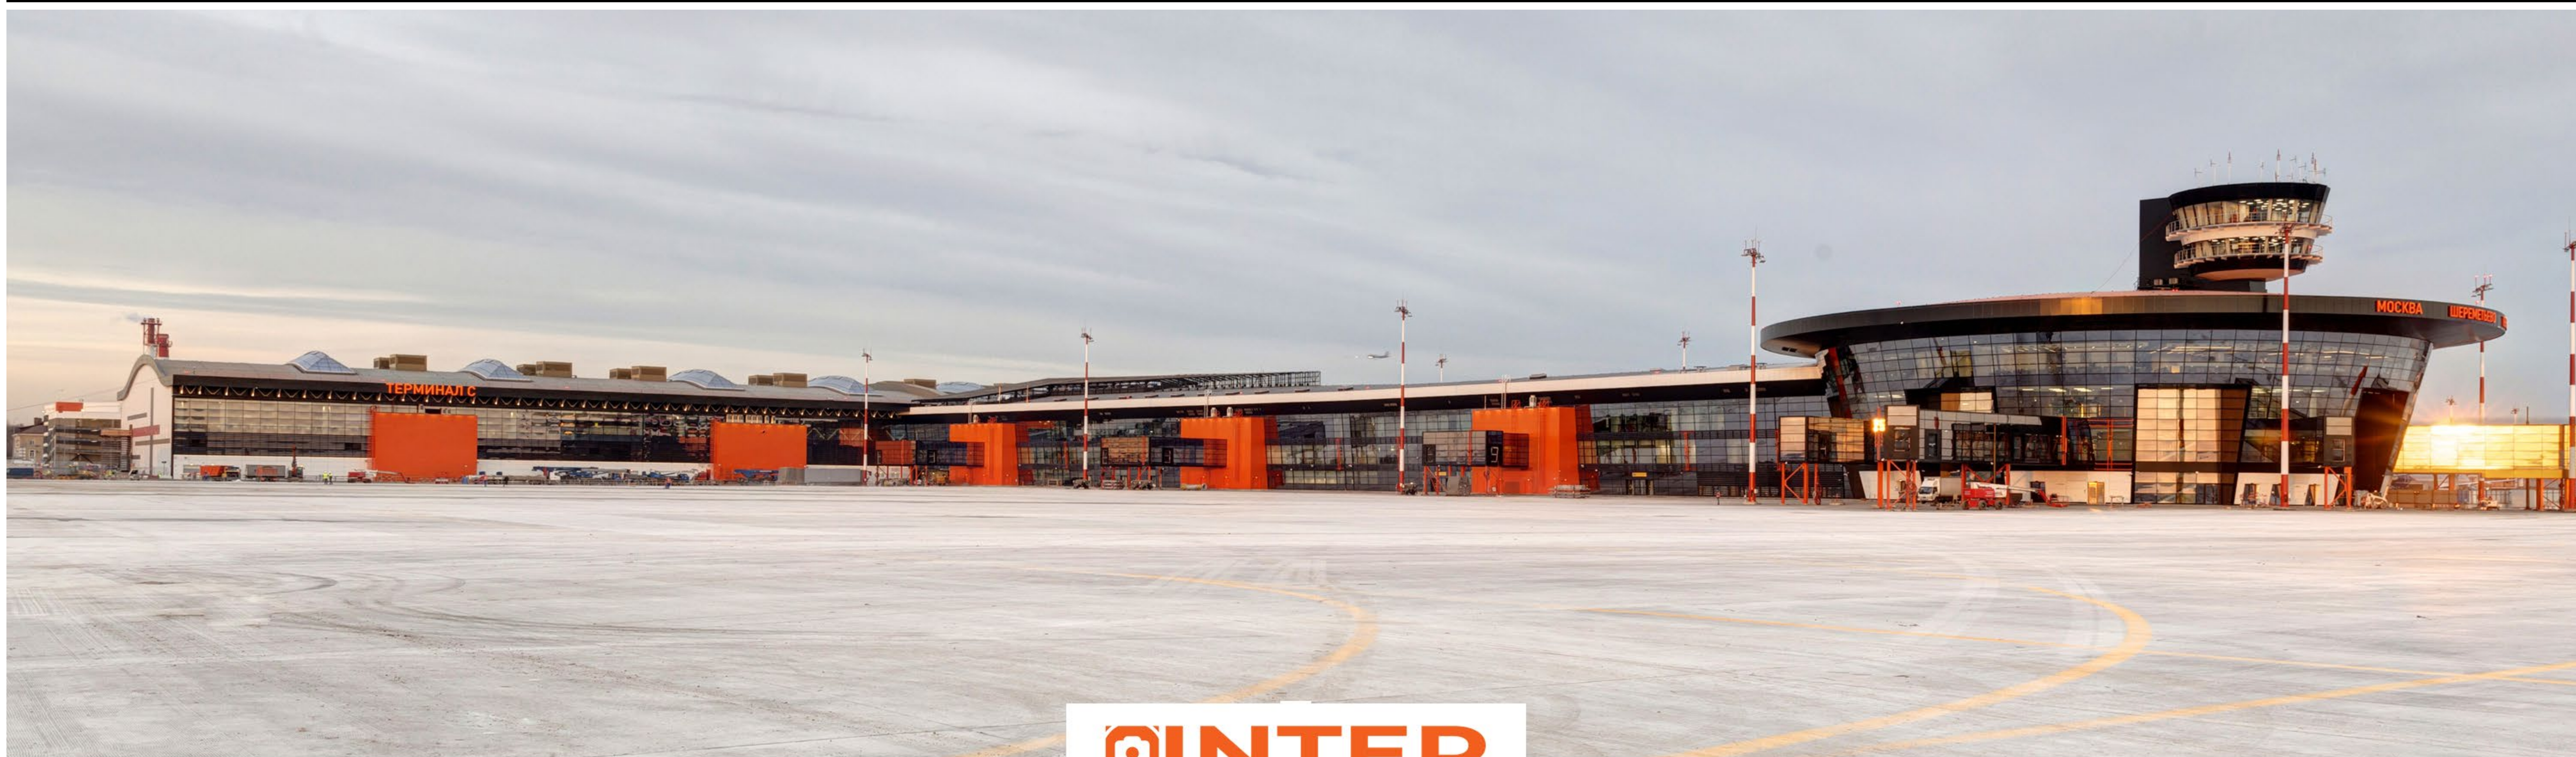

Aesthetic architectural visual content of many buildings such as shopping malls, residential projects and villas, factories taken from different angles are often included in printed and digital media portals and play a major role to give desired message to the target audience. It is one of the types of shots that real estate and investment companies, construction companies, housing sales offices and architecture offices apply to create portfolios and manage their social media accounts.

Obtaining a quality architectural visual is not an easy process and depends on weather conditions, the area where the building is located, its height and at what time of day the main facade receives it. The hours of sunrise and sunset, the angle of the sun at the shooting time are important. The fact that the light is hard or soft causes it to create different intonations and shadows in the visual.

Construction

Contractors and subcontractors archive their works with visuals at all stages of the projects. These images are mainly used in internal reporting, in the reports submitted to the employer, company websites and social media accounts. The images also can be shared with safety, quality control, tender and PR departments. The periodic presentation of the construction process in residential and villa projects to customers via social media also increases the trust of customers in the company. Taking photos of staff is in demand and often used for company media portfolios.

Taking photo of construction site is not an easy process and depends on weather conditions, the area where the building is located, its height and at what time of day the main facade receives it. The hours of sunrise and sunset, the angle of the sun at the shooting time are important.

The layout of construction materials, machinery and equipment on the site, using of personal protective equipments such as construction boots, safety glasses, high visibility vests, hard hats by workers and staff personnel at the construction site are important and preparation should be made before shooting.

Industry & Technology

Photographing production and technological facilities, engineering systems is not an easy task, which requires an industrial photographer to have experience in shooting architecture, interiors and knowledge of complex techniques in order to competently capture the production process.

Industrial photography is often required:

- During the opening of a new facility or the operation of equipment
- To prepare presentations for participation in tenders or exhibitions
- To create a website and maintain social accounts
- For printed products or outdoor advertising.

Photos taken using good composition and lighting techniques will bring your brand to the forefront on social networks, attract the attention of other users and help you convey the message you want to give in an aesthetic way and increase interest in your service or product.

Having images specific to your business that meet your corporate identity criteria not only increases your chances in the industry, but also increases the level of trust of potential customers in your brand and business. Product photos are taken and processed for use on your website or sales platforms and allow your web designers to use the images without additional processing. The photos also can be taken by using different compositions and backgrounds to reflect the presentation and interior decor of your restaurant or cafe.

«Влюбленный в небо»

Актуг Атеш
ISBN 9781715041601

Любовь к авиации немного отличается от всего остального. Если вы любите авиацию, вы будете любить ее всю свою жизнь, и вы всегда будете смотреть на небо каждый раз, когда самолет пролетает над вами с теми же эмоциями, что и в первые!

Прошло почти 25 лет с тех пор, как я начал заниматься съемкой воздушных судов. Здесь я собрал хронику своих впечатлений и воспоминаний, техническую информацию о фотосъемке и обработке фотографий, разные приемы при фотографировании, наблюдения во время посещения разных аэропортов мира. Я надеюсь, читая эту книгу, получите удовольствие и овладеете полезной для вас информацией. “Влюбленный в небо” в печатном виде доступна на сайте Blurb.com.
